Entrance Music: "PREDATOR" by YONAKA

Entrance Description: The quiet drumbeat and breathy vocal opening of YONAKA's "PREDATOR" streams through the speakers around the arena, and the lights in the arena begin flashing erratically. It's enough to distract the crowd as a singular figure seemingly appears out of nowhere at the top of the entrance, and as the vocals pick up again a spotlight shines down on the figure, drawing the attention of the crowd back to the entrance stage. Donning a floor-length coat and streaks of paint down the right side of her face, Kasey Vex stands at the top of the ramp, gazing out across the crowd with a slight smirk curling up one side of her mouth. She raises her arms to her sides, doing a slow spin before making her way down the ramp, occasionally slapping the outstretched hands of the fans on either side of the aisle. As she approaches the ring and saunters around to the side, she leaps nimbly up to the apron and crouches low, her head turning slowly across the front row of fans before she turns to slide underneath the bottom rope to the centre of the ring. She crouches there for another moment before smoothly rising to her feet and heading towards the corner, nimbly leaping up onto the second turnbuckle, planting her right foot on the top turnbuckle and gazing out towards the crowd with her arms extended out. Leaping back down to the mat, she sheds her ring jacket and hands it to the timekeeper, jumping around in place and doing some light stretching.

Gimmick: Seemingly shaking off the temporary dark cloud that had been dogging her for a while, the Kasey Vex that everyone knows and loves is back...though perhaps with a bit more of an edge. After capturing the Valkyrie Pro Celestial Championship, she seems to have undergone a bit of a transformation, not only in attitude but in style as well. Regardless, she still fights with honor and integrity and is looking to forge the next chapter in her legacy. She still retains some of her sassy demeanor, but now looks to become a leader in the world of professional wrestling, an icon for the ages.

In-Ring Psychology: Inside the ring, she tries to keep a quick pace to benefit her style. She doesn't really do a lot of power/strength type moves, so the faster the match goes the better it works to her advantage. She had a burst of success within the hardcore division of a previous company, and found that she had a taste for the ultraviolent style. While she doesn't apply it to normal matches, she is not one to shy away from a hardcore or deathmatch scenario, going so far as to even get excited about the prospect.

Strengths

- Speed: She's extremely quick and can run circles around most opponents.
- Tenacity: She has a never-say-die attitude and will keep fighting long after she should have conceivably surrendered.

- Agility: She can contort and flex her body to help her either get out of the perilous moves of her opponent, or at least lessen the painful impact. She's also quite nimble and can use the top rope or barricades as jumping points for her aerial maneuvers.

Weaknesses

- Stamina: While she does have speed, it comes in short bursts. If she ever has to participate in something like an Iron Man-type match, it's pretty much game over for her.

- Strength/Power: With her slender build, she's not winning any powerlifting competitions anytime soon.

- Tenacity: While it can be an incredible asset to her, it can also be her downfall as sometimes she'll push herself past her limits and be in danger of a serious injury.
