This poll was conducted on December 30, 2020 and on January 3, 2021. Qualtrics conducted the survey online among self-identified Georgia likely voters (n = 550). Qualtrics e-mailed individual respondents who then responded to the survey through a personalized link.

Qualtrics utilizes a double-opt in process and utilizes third-party verification to ensure that the responses to the survey are coming from real people. Qualtrics also uses digital fingerprinting technology to verify the identity of respondents. To ensure that respondents are paying attention to the survey, Qualtrics auto-filters any survey response that is completed in less than one-half of the median survey completion time. Qualtrics rejects straight-line or pattern responses. Qualtrics provides an attention check question at the beginning of the survey to ensure that a real person is completing the survey and paying attention to the survey.

The survey results were weighted by gender, education, age, and 2020 vote choice for President Donald Trump. The overall margin of error for the general election part of the poll was ± 4%. The Republican primary part of the poll was ± 7%. Total column percentages may not add up to 100% due to rounding.

For more information about this poll, e-mail Alexander Chan (MBA Candidate '22, UNLV Lee Business School) at chana22@unlv.nevada.edu.

The survey questions were posed to all respondents in the precise order below. Eligible respondents only qualified to take the poll if they (a) answered "yes" to question 1; (b) answered "already voted" or "definitely vote" or "probably vote" to question 2; (c) completed the full survey. All partial responses were discarded.

Qualtrics was directed to rotate the answers to questions 3-16 and 24.
