

What age is a bounce house for?

Let's discuss what age a bounce house rental is suited for.

The short answer to this question is any age that is able to stand up and support themselves without assistance. This refers to a toddler who may be too small to support themselves standing up in the bounce house and keeping his/her balance. Keep in mind there are great toddler bounce houses that are designed specifically for the ages of 1-6 years. The other consideration is the elderly or someone with a heart condition they may not necessarily be out of the age range for them, but they may indeed be in physical shape to be able to use a bounce house rental without injury.

Bounce House rentals can be designed for ages 1-99, however that is a very broad answer, and so we need to clarify within this answer that it would have to meet physical criteria if in that age range. The physical criteria outlined above for toddlers and elderly should be followed with a word of caution that when in doubt, don't include them in the activity. The old saying "better safe than sorry" comes into play here. Bounce House Rentals typically come with restrictions on any health issues like heart conditions, prone to dizziness, injuries like casts, and sprains, and weight restrictions would be common items you would see listed with precautions on a bounce house rental.

Don't let your restriction stop you however if you can't participate in a bounce house rental there is many other choices that are available within a bounce house rental business like Carnival Games, Giant Games, Concessions, and a few others like Mobile Escape Rooms, Gem Mining, Mini Golf, Extreme Racing, Movie Nights, Bumper Cars, Axe Throwing Rentals, and lots of other rental ideas that will be able to engage you in fun without the risk of re-injury if you are not participating due to an injury or you are taking any special health precautions.
