I had finally gotten that high ticket client worth $20000

As well that's what I thought

It was a normal day at home.

Working on my low-paying Copywriting clients who do not respect me.

They see me as a robot that just works for them for a little money and doesn't have feelings.

I had strong feelings. I was going to become a real copywriter and get some real clients and make some serious money.

It was my dream as a copywriter to work for one of the biggest companies, Samsung, so I took the chance and wrote them an email.

They replied with a yes. I was jumping around my room. I had never been more blessed. I kept contacting them over the week.

They ghosted me.

I made a powerful fist and pierced through my monitor with the speed of light.

Instant Regret.

I Made Sure You Won't End Up In The Same Situation
