hi taim, i have a problem and was wondering if you could help. i'm in sixth form and at a cross roads about uni degrees and career options etc. i'm really split between medicine and physics. i really love physics and it excites me and keeps me up at night, but i'm unsure of any careers in it that would optimise for what i want (effective altruism, people based, travel opportunities etc). i feel like i could learn to love medicine but my heart feels more in physics.

oh noooo i hadn't proof read that nooooo sent that too early ahhhhhh noooo oh well haha. anyway, i know she's probably really busy, but listening to lucia on the podcast massively struck a chord with me. i was wondering if there's any way i could have a conversation with her? completely fine if not, thanks if you read all that haha also if you know of any effective altruism people in physics and could point me towards them, that would be great :)
