Frostbite holds campaign rally with Vice President Ibney in the Chesapeake 2/28

After a tight race in the Chesapeake second district Vice President Ibney hits the campaign trail to help Frostbite secure the contested congressional seat. After 2 days of canvassing and holding events in counties all across the Chesapeake 2nd district, the duo is holding one final event in Charleston, West Virginia. At the Charleston Coliseum and Convention center, eager supporters surround the stage cheering for the candidate and vice President. After waiting for far too long a voice appears over the intercom introducing the vice president while playing 'Hail to the chief'. While waiting for the crowd the Vice President smiles with glee and claps for the crowd. Once the crowd quiets down the Vice President begins his speech...

Ibney: Thank you all for being here tonight! I have the honor of introducing a new face of the Republican Party and for the people of America! In the past few months, I have been working tirelessly to promote new and fresh faces to Congress and to the field of politics. I'm sure many of you have heard of Chris Frost leaving the Republican Party in recent months and many of you are probably wondering how our relationship and friends is doing. Well, I can say with certainty and with the assistance of my niece who is much better at this "meme" thing that I am:

Ibney pulls out a sheet of paper, puts on his glasses, and reads aloud:
"Friendship ended with Frost, now Frostbite is my best friend."

There are audible groans from the crowd

Ibney: Everyone please welcome Mr. Frostbite!

Frostbite: Thank you so much Mr. Vice President. I hope you're doing well tonight Charleston! In a couple of days, the results of this election will be revealed. I know we will carry this district together. With our broad coalition of moderate republicans, democrats, and independents we will bring a balanced policy platform to Washington that will sure real progress is made. For far too long Democrats and socialists have made your lives harder. It is almost like they're actively working against you. They claim to be working in your interest by making empty promises of government programs that will make your lives easier, but what do they do? Increase your taxes, create a shortage of goods and services causing you to spend days dealing with bureaucratic red-tape. How can anybody say this is helpful policy? Under my leadership and with your support we can give the citizens of the Chesapeake the ability and tools to help themselves. The government has no business telling you how to take care of yourself or assuming it knows how to spend your money better than you do. Speaking of money lets talk about my opponent ecro1. He claims to be a democrat upholding the virtues of our constitution and democracy, yet he gives more priority to big donors. He is the perfect example of a corporate democrat that claims to be defending the common man. In Washington, we are gonna push for campaign finance reform to ensure that everyone is on an equal playing field when it comes to elections. Now do not get my message twisted. Any corporation and individual should be able to make as much money as they want and keep as much of it as they want. However when individuals are making campaign contributions larger than entire counties that is not fair. When the founders enshrined "All men are created equal" in the Declaration of Independence they, of course, meant political equality. No individual citizen should have more political power than another. I believe my campaign has upheld this principle. Taking no big money donations from Super PACs, but instead relying on contributions from you, the people of the Chesapeake. My opponent, as I mentioned before, gives more focus to his big-money donors. Having private fancy dinners with them instead of meeting the people he claims to care about. During my tour with Vice President, I have met a diverse array of people with many issues. They often asked me, "how do I know you will be able to deliver on your promises?" To me the answer is simple, I am a pragmatic person. I put ideology and personal gain aside in order to make meaningful progress. Compromise is a word that is not used enough in Washington, this country's most important document was a compromise between the Virginia and New Jersey plans in 1787. I put the progress of my constituents above all else and am willing to give some ground to gain some ground. That is how I am going to get things done, by working across the aisle and finding a consensus everyone can be happy with.

As the crowd bursts into cheers, Frostbite and the Vice President go down into the crowd to shake hands and take pictures. The Vice President will be leaving Frostbite's side there is still more work that must be done before election day.
