We're happy to announce that Cloud Printing is now setup for the printer. That way you can print from your phone, your laptop, and any other device that works with Google Cloud Print, from literally anywhere in the world. Best of all, we did almost all the work for you. Google Cloud Print is already setup with your @stuy.edu email.

Learn more about how to use Google Cloud Print here: google.com/cloudprint/learn/apps.html

Or, listed below is what we suggest you use for Google Cloud print!

For Android

Install the Google Cloud Print app. This lets you use cloud printers with anything.

You can print from your phone!

For PC

Printing from Chrome browser will allow you to select destinations. Select "StuyCloudPrinter" from the list and you should be good to go. If that is not an option, going to google.com/cloudprint will allow you to upload documents that you want printed.

For iPhone

While there is no official app for Cloud Printing on iPhone, you can still use it from within the Google Docs/Drive app. Just go to Google Docs, and print any document. An option should pop up for cloud print, and the printer should be available. There are some unofficial apps that allow cloud printing to work as well, but we cannot recommend any at this time

Printing from google docs from any device will allow cloud print to be used, and most google services have a cloud print feature.

As always, this printer is a privilege and if you misuse it it will be taken away.
