| Mrs Collin's Daily Lessons | Click here to access Mrs. Collins' Daily Lessons |
| Writing | 1. Write in your journal for about 25 minutes.2. Don't forget to edit your writing for capital letters, periods and known trick words.3. Share your writing with someone at home |
| Reading | Questioning - Nonfiction BooksYou will need one nonfiction book that you can read independently for this lesson. You can use a "post-it" to write your questions or a seperate piece of paper.1. Asking questions before, during and after reading nonfiction books is important, too!2. Watch video3. Now, take out your nonfiction book.  Write one question you have before you read.  Begin reading your book and stop during your reading to write another question.  After you finish your book, write one more question about what you are still wondering.  If you'd like, take a picture and send your questions to your teacher.4. Have a family member ask you some questions, too.  Good readers can ask and answer questions about their reading. |
| Math | 1. Watch the video2. Complete Homework and Remembering 6.83. If you would like to practice more math, you can:-create your own Which One Doesn't Belong-go on Freckle-make flash cards-write and solve a number story |

| | Please take a picture of one math activity and send it to your teacher. |
|---|---|
| Science/Social Studies | Needs and Wants Sort1. Needs and Wants Sort    a. Think about which objects are a need and which objects are a want    b. *You do not need to print this activity!  Use a piece of paper or your math board to make a T-chart and write the names of each object on the correct side |
