

Ashleigh Nightengale - Employment for People with Disabilities

Ashleigh: Work gives you a sense of dignity and pride. Being that there's so much stigma around disability that ultimately says you can't do what everyone else can do, once you're in a work environment, there's always this issue of quantity over quality.

Being a person with a disability, you have to find a place that accommodates your skills, and I would say, your limitations, so there isn't an issue later of "Well you can't keep up. We have to let you go." I hope as society goes on, it becomes more open.
