Image	Name	Description
	Standard Handgun	The murder weapon. Only two bullets were discharged from the gun with matching ballistic markings. Only the defendant's fingerprints were lifted from the weapon.
	Roulette Table Photo 1	A photograph taken of the roulette table at the crime scene. It shows the entire table taken from a distance.
	Roulette Table Photo 2	A photograph taken of the roulette table at the crime scene. It shows the chips placed on the table and the corresponding betters on the last bet.
	Hallway CCTV Footage	Security footage captures only the entrance of the crime scene without audio. There are no signs of footage being edited or deleted. The timestamps below were submitted as relevant evidence: - 6:00 PM: Roux enters the VIP room with the defendant and victim following close behind. The two are visibly arguing with each other. Neither of them are holding anything. - 6:05 PM: A server enters the room carrying a bottle and glasses covered in a white cloth. He is seen leaving empty handed only a few minutes later. - 7:30 PM: Roux runs out of the scene alone in a panic. - 7:35 PM: Both Roux and another employee enter the scene together. - 7:45 PM: Detective Belief and the police arrive to investigate the scene. The owner leaves her office to speak with them in the hallway before returning. - 9:00 PM: Police leave the scene with Bach in handcuffs and the victim in a body bag. All footage after 9 PM was deemed irrelevant to the case.
	Casino Security Detail	According to the owner, the casino has been losing profits since the start of the year when the victim first arrived. Because of this it has recently been difficult for the business as a whole to stay afloat, as well as hire new staff and better security. There is a severe lack of security in the building as a result.

	Lipstick	A tube of lipstick that was discovered clutched in the victim’s right hand. Only the victim’s fingerprints were lifted from it, meaning it likely belonged to her. There is pink glitter stuck to it.
	Defendant’s Medical Report	A medical examination conducted on the defendant after his arrest. The report was submitted by Dr. Jack Potts of Fullhouse Hospital. "Mr. Karat was dealt a concussion to the back of the head, which left many small lacerations. The patient testified to blacking out several seconds after he was struck; as well as going in and out of consciousness. Aside from the concussion, no other head injuries were identified. Minor bruises were found on the arms and torso. No other cuts were found elsewhere on his body."
	Silk Gloves	A pair of silk gloves taken directly from the victim’s hands. The palm of the left glove is soaked in the victim’s blood. The gloves are entirely decorated with pink glitter that sticks to everything quite easily.
	Criminal Record	Multiple police reports written on the defendant who has a history of harassment, violent threats, and battery. The man was previously on trial for assaulting a female croupier at High Rollers, where she was treated at the Fullhouse Hospital. He was released only a year after serving his sentence.
	Broken Bottle	A broken bottle of Dan Jackiel’s whiskey was laying on the floor next to the defendant. Blood droplets belonging to the defendant were among the shards. The bottle is completely clean with no prints.
	V.I.P. Room Rules	A short list of rules for VIP members at the High Rollers Casino: - Only patrons with a VIP membership are allowed to enter. A membership card must be shown to a dealer. - Only two V.I.P members and one dealer are allowed in one of the V.I.P. rooms at a time. A time limit of 2 hours is set for each session. - No food or drink are allowed to be brought inside the room. A beverage of the patron’s choice will be provided by staff at the start of each session. - If a VIP member is caught cheating, their membership will be terminated and they will be banned from the casino, indefinitely.
