LINK to GLOBAL GOALS

The GCP Planning Tool will be used to organize and plan for the implementation of a project to meet one or more of the Global Goals of the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

Which United Nations Sustainable Development Goal(s) are you aiming to implement at school or push out into the community? Dig into the targets and indicators and look for issues that have one degree of separation between you and your community. Make it personal to your community of students.

Brainstorm and gather information about how your chosen local issue is related to the SDG. Take a critical look at the issue and gather the required information to guide further decision making.

What would your community look like if this goal were achieved? What kinds of actions would have to occur? Who would have to be involved to make it happen? Think about your local environment – what are the issues affecting it?

After picking one idea to focus on, use this Planning Tool to lay out a path to action.

Impact Planning Tool

Now that you feel confident in tackling the SDGs and able to locate the resources you need, you can begin to think about moving your academic knowledge into an empowered, action-oriented direction. Using this form, dive into SDGs and find the issues that you care strongly about. The targets and indicators should help inform you in developing an

SDG	Target to push
	Indicator that supports your Target

Once you have chosen your SDG, identify the target that you can connect to your community. Identify, if possible, an indicator for the target that you can build your project or campaign around.

Here are some useful resources to use for this section:
