

Full Bio

Jesse Powers is a self-proclaimed “conscious pop” singer/songwriter based in Columbus, OH. She has been singing and writing since childhood. Beginning as an outlet to cope with those issues expectant of the average middle schooler (young love, youth, and growing up) her craft has evolved into a vessel for the exploration and communication of more complex, universal ideas and questions (reality, truth, mortality, greatness, etc). Jesse’s passion for uncovering and disseminating ultimate truth about the absolutely ludicrous phenomenon of being alive is the life behind her lyrics, and these “big life questions” are confronted and investigated in songs like “Alex’s Song” and “Let Me Love You.” Her perceptive and penetrating lyricism, tumbling vocal stylings, and powerhouse pop melodies combine to create a unique but oh-so-catchy sound that entertains and profoundly awakens those who listen closely.

Jesse can be seen playing in venues in coffees shops and bars in Columbus and surrounding areas. She often makes appearances at the Columbus Center for Spiritual Living, a spiritual organization in Dublin, OH designed to uplift and inspire people to be their best, most-awakened selves, and a community that Jesse considers to be the birthplace of her mission and musical career. Jesse often shares her talents nationwide at inspirational conferences and other established spiritual organizations. Her first release, The Youth Before, is a collection of demos of her very early songs written between 2004 and 2010. Her second release, an EP entitled “Happiness Moves,” was a collaboration with the members of Senseless Beatings, a band in which she made a brief appearance as a co-writer and vocalist in her time as an undergraduate at Winthrop University. The songs in “Begin. A Surrender” her third release and first full-length album, were recorded “live” in the studio in single takes in collaboration with her music partner, Chad Warren. Currently, Jesse is working on a second full-length album set to release in late 2019. Her music is available on Spotify, Pandora, Youtube Music, Bandcamp, Amazon Music, and Apple Music.
