Synopsis:

A Shonen series following the rise of a villain group in a Superhero world. The main character just appears onto the scene one day. With no origin story, and without so much as a name, all that's known about this chaotic individual is that they have incredibly strange demonic-like powers and have set their sights on becoming the top villain. They wind up finding people thrown away by the world — giving them a second chance. This villain has only one rule, no killing.

As the villain team gains notoriety they come into direct conflict with an upstart hero and their team. This particular upstart being the apprentice of the world's greatest Hero and on track to someday take on the same title. A rivalry forms between the two.

However, everything changes when inevitably the world's most dangerous villain plans to destroy the world. The main character ends up not just in a position where he needs to rebel from this villain, but he is the only one who can actually stop them. Follow as our villain sets out to save the world! With foes on both sides and immeasurable odds, how will he overcome this challenge?
