

SL: John...STOP sending the same type of emails

Hello John,

I hope this email finds you well. I wanted to reach out to you because a few months back, I stumbled upon your YouTube content while helping out a friend with the math section of the SAT, specifically the geometry exercises.

What I appreciate about your videos is your direct approach. You don't waste time and provide practical tips and strategies that truly help people struggling with the concepts. Just the other day, while I was rummaging through my inbox looking for a lost email, I came across some of your messages. I noticed that you consistently follow a particular pattern in all of them.

So, I've taken the liberty of crafting an email that you can use to direct people to your latest YouTube video (the one released on May 31st) while also selling on the backend. You can test it right away. By combining valuable content with sales emails, you'll create an effective approach and maintain high open rates.

Your customers will see that you genuinely want to help and provide value, rather than just focusing on selling to them, and as a result, they will continue to open your emails every time. I believe this will prove to be a much better long-term strategy.

Anyway, here is the email:
