SI: It all seemed lost...

It was a dark Saturday night and rain was gently knocking on our window.

I sat in the studio in dead silence with my dear friend x.

“We didn’t make it happen” he said quietly while sitting in his chair and tiredly leaning forward.

I nodded.

We released a full album two weeks ago and had big hopes for it...

Yet it got less than 1000 streams.

Our last money was spent on advertising that album. We did not have a single penny left.

“What now?” he asked while staring at the floor.

I hesitated for a second or two before I started telling him my new bold idea that was on my mind for about a week now.

Fast forward two months.

We released a new album barely spending anything on advertising.

I knew from the beginning that we would make it. I felt that chill overrun my body every time we started recording.

Two weeks after releasing the album my idea proved itself.

We did it. Our top song got 100 times more streams than our whole album did before.

I’m sure you want to know what my idea was.

I discovered something that I call the “chart-break factor”.

Do you want to implement it in your music?

I got you.

SI: How are the big names making big numbers?

Have you ever wondered what makes Eminem's, Calvin Harris's and David Guetta's music so great?

It's not the perfect melody.

It's not in the lyrics.

It's not because of their marketing.

It's not because they have a big name...

Once, they were just like you are. They didn't have a single stream to their names.

Even if the beat was perfect, but they left out this one single component, they would not be anywhere.

I am talking about making your music interesting and different.

Do you not believe me?

Queen has billions of streams on Bohemian Rhapsody.

It has rock mixed with an opera in it.

This proves my point.

Now you are asking yourself.

"Pascal, how do I do this?"

You might have tried it, but all you had was a weird sound.

Click the button below to find out how to make your music instantly more interesting to listen to using Ableton 11.

SI: Stop Dreaming, Start Producing

Do you want the most valuable asset that you can ever have?

Knowledge.

- How do you create an idea?
- How do you expand it?
- How do you record?
- How do you mix and master?
- And finally, to harvest the fruits of your labor. How do you put it out to the world?

These are the fundamental principles of making a good song.

Do you know how to do them?

If not, I got you covered.

Click the button below to learn how to release your song by the end of next week 📌

SI: Do you know why most starters fail?

Because they don't really start.

They watch a few videos on Youtube, look around in Ableton, realize that this is hard, and then quit.

After that, they go on with their lives. As if nothing has happened, but deep down, they know that they should have pushed harder. But they decide not to. They are lazy.

They did not start at the needed time, so they never did.

Time combined with fear has defeated them.

Now they don't have any reason to start.

But you still have time.

You can still be smiling when you show your friends that great beat you made.

You can still work with the biggest artist you can ever imagine.

You can still pick up music production as a skill that will provide a living for you.

You still have it in yourself.

So why would you let the best part of your life go to waste?

To show you that I want to help you, I have a 10% coupon for you.

Type ALME10 at the checkout to get 10% off your offer.

You have 24 hours from now to use that code.

The clock is ticking.

All the best,
Pascal

P.S. If you bought the course yesterday and didn't get 10% off, send me an email with the receipt of your purchase, and I will give you a special gift.
