I. INTRODUCTION

The introduction describes the background of the article discussed as a whole. The introduction should be written clearly and succinctly, between 3-5 paragraphs only, comprising: (a) an adequate background and significance of your paper; (b) concise previous studies related to the issue written in your manuscript; (c) the main limitation of the previous studies and what you hope to achieve (to solve the limitation) in your manuscript; (d) the scientific merit or novelties of your paper; (e) the aim(s) of the study; and (f) the structure of the article or research questions.

All writings should be written in paragraph format; this journal discourages the authors from writing point per point in the numbering and bullet formats. The manuscript uses font Garamond (15 pt), 1.15 pt space, with a length of 8,000-12,000 words (including footnotes) and a minimum of 40 references (80% from journal articles). The footnotes follow the style of the Canadian Guide to Uniform Legal Citation (McGill Guide). The authors are advised to use Zotero software, which can be downloaded here. For guidance on the McGill Guide, download the citation from Zotero here.

II. METHODOLOGY

This part should provide a statement about the research methodology. It includes the approaches used in the research and how the author obtained the data. This methodology should give an idea to the reader through the techniques used.

III. FIRST HEADING OF THE DISCUSSION

It is an important section of your manuscript. The analysis should be clear and concise. Heading in the discussion section should be consistently written with the structure of the article or the research statement, as mentioned in the introduction. Headings in this discussion use Roman letters (I., II., III., etc.; you can add more than one part of the discussion, it depends on the structure of the discussion you want to write).

A. Second-Level Heading in Italics (Sub-discussion)

Following the main headings, a sub-heading is provided in the manuscript.

1. Third-Level Heading

Following main headings and subheadings, the journal allows the authors to use third-level headings (sub-subheadings), which are numbered with 1., 2., 3., etc.

IV. SECOND HEADING OF THE DISCUSSION

It is an important section of your manuscript. The analysis should be clear and concise. Heading in the discussion section should be consistently written with the structure of the article or the research statement, as mentioned in the introduction. Headings in this discussion use Roman letters (I., II., III., etc.; you can add more than one part of the discussion, it depends on the structure of the discussion you want to write).

A. Second-Level Heading in Italics (Sub-discussion)

Following the main headings, a sub-heading is provided in the manuscript.

1. Third-Level Heading

Following main headings and subheadings, the journal allows the authors to use sub-subheadings, which are numbered with 1., 2., 3., etc.

V. CONCLUSION

The conclusion should concisely answer the research aims as previously mentioned in the abstract and the introduction. The authors should highlight the importance of research findings and to what extent this research will result in further implications. Please do not repeat the abstract or describe the results of the research. Also, in this part, the authors are not allowed to discuss a new issue. The authors are suggested to write the conclusion between 1-2 paragraphs only.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The authors may recognize those who helped in the research, especially funding supporters of research. The acknowledgment can include individuals who have assisted you in your study: Advisors, Financial supporters, or other supporters, i.e., Proofreaders, Typists, and Suppliers who may have given materials.

COMPETING INTEREST

The authors will be asked to sign this statement once the submission has been accepted.
