

Whiteout's Relationships

Ominous: One of Whiteout's adopted fathers, Ominous is the one that they had the most interaction with growing up. Ominous would let them bury into his fluff when they had night terrors growing up. Though, he was admittedly concerned that the only reaction Whiteout seemed to have was emotional and it was completely invisible otherwise.

Poltergeist: The other adopted father, who Whiteout only saw in the mornings and at night. Such is the life of a nocturnal darkling. They understood why, given how sensitive Poltergeist was to the light, but it still made them a bit sad. At least they still had the mornings and nights to chat, over breakfast and before bed.

Smog [Deceased]: Whiteout's older brother. Whiteout wishes they had more memories of him, but they were only four years old when he was slain. Most of the memories have faded, but those that remain are what drive Whiteout to be so against death as a whole.

Umbra: Whiteout's older sister they like to call "Shadow." They have horrific memories of what happened to her, and were admittedly glad that they weren't allowed to see her when the dragonling transformation had triggered. Though they were quite sad when she left on the day of her 18th birthday and they barely got to give her a proper goodbye, they did understand it. The only benefit is that, following their exile, they have run into her a few times in the wilds, and they would spend time catching up when they did.

Lunares Prima Luce: One of Whiteout's teachers, he would bring trinkets for them to play with quite often. He would sometimes bring his daughter to help him explain things, as she seemed much more capable of solid explanations than he did at times.

Borealis Prima Luce: A springviper that joined them for classes a few times later on in their life. She lived in Meros from their knowledge, so her visits were scarce, but she seemed to know a lot about the different cultures of the world. Xe would give them flowers, they loved the pink ones especially.

Aureate: Their first attempt at a "Revival." They did love her, really, but what they did for her was... Not accepted by society.