Reference should not be written in the abstract, but if it is indispensable, the authors' name and publication year should be cited. The nonstandard abbreviation should be avoided, but if it is essential, the full name should be specified in its initial mention.

INTRODUCTION

The introduction contains the purpose of article/research that is formulated and presented by an adequate introduction and avoids detail references and research result presentations. The introduction should include background, research urgency and gap analysis with existing research to show the novelty. The purpose of the research should be clearly seen in the introduction. The introduction should be straightforward.

METHOD

This section should describe in detail how the study was conducted. It includes information on the participants/population/sample, instruments, procedures, and data analysis. A complete description of the method used enables the reader to evaluate the appropriateness of the research methodology.

FINDINGS AND DISCUSSION

The results and discussion are written in one unit; the author is not justified based on the results and prior discussion in the form of a new chapter. How to write in the results and discussion is done directly by reviewing directly one by one, the research results obtained with relevant references and prioritizing from primary sources. The results of the study can be equipped with tables, pictures and graphics to clarify the presentation of the research results verbally.

The results and discussion should be presented in the same part, clearly and briefly. The discussion part should contain the benefit of the research result, not the repeat result part. The results and discussion part can be written in the same part to avoid the extensive quotation. Tables or graphs must present different results. The results of data analysis must be reliable in answering research problems. References to the discussion should not repeat the references in the introduction. Comparisons to the findings of previous studies must be included.

CONCLUSION

This section contains research results, research findings in the form of answers to research questions or the state of digest results of the discussion. The conclusion of the research is presented briefly, narrative, and conceptual. The research impact must be stated. This section is presented in paragraph form, not numbering/listing. Just like the second part above, since the first paragraph, the first sentence is also written indented into one tab. Conclusions are presented in one paragraph.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Acknowledgements should be made only to those who have made a substantial contribution to the study. Authors are responsible for obtaining written permission from people acknowledged by name in case readers infer their endorsement of data and conclusions.

DECLARATION OF AI AND AI-ASSISTED TECHNOLOGIES
