

When Bias Gets in the Way: How to Recognize and Address Barriers to Supporting LGBTQ+ Students and Families

Last Revised: May 5, 2026

This resource list is a companion to the Michigan LGBTQ+ Students Project's virtual workshop "When Bias Gets in the Way: How to Recognize and Address Barriers to Supporting LGBTQ+ Students and Families" that is a part of the project's A Silent Crisis: Creating Safe Schools for LGBTQ+ Students Online Training Series.

Our unique experiences, identities, privileges and biases shape our perceptions of the world and how we act. In this interactive webinar, participants will explore the ways in which biases are formed and influence how we interact--consciously and unconsciously--with those around us. We will identify strategies for navigating our own biases, as well as collaborating with families and colleagues who may take actions that have the unintentional consequence of creating unsupportive or even harmful educational environments for their LGBTQ+ students. A foundational understanding of sexual orientation, gender identity and gender expression is recommended, but not required.

About the Michigan LGBTQ+ Students' Project

The Michigan LGBTQ+ Students Project has supported Michigan educators for over 20 years. Though previously supported by grants from sources such as the Michigan Health Endowment Fund, the project currently has no dedicated funding. We are seeking new paths to continue to build the capacity of Michigan schools to support the health, well-being, and educational outcomes of not just LGBTQ+ students--but all students--in Michigan. Please contact us if you are looking to contract the project for professional development or technical assistance services or if you need additional information or resources.
