

Commissions are currently: OPEN

Some basics before requesting a commission:

- Have the references of your character ready and together in someplace I can access them easily, such as screenshots, previous art, etc. Plus a brief description of your character's personality.
- If there is no prior art of your character, you can provide me with a description (ten lines or less) or references from already existing characters similar to yours. Designing a character from zero is a different job that will increase the price of the commission.
- I choose which commissions I would like to take on.
- Payment is full and upfront. Once I've notified you that I've accepted your request, I'll start working after the payment.
- Once your commission is accepted, you'll get a base sketch, setting the pose and proportions. We'll work most of the details then, and you're allowed to change anything you want until you're pleased with the picture. Once the sketch is approved, I will provide another WIP of the lineart and another one, later, of the base coloring and shading. Be aware that multiple big changes increase the pricing of the final product, especially those to the pose or lineart once we've started the coloring process.
- When the commission is fully done, you'll receive the high resolution files of your finished illustration, one with a watermark and one without. Please use the watermarked version for public use of your picture. Only the Client is allowed to have or ask for the finished piece.

The pricing is tied to the hours of work dedicated to each piece. More hours of work, I.E, extra characters or companions, shading, complicated details, re-doing stuff... will increase the final prize of the commission. You will be informed when such is the case.

Terms of service.

- Please understand that I may be working on different requests at the same time, so it may take me up to 30 days to complete yours.
- Your email and information sent via Paypal will be remembered by my Paypal account. I will not distribute your information anywhere to anyone.
- I reserve all rights to the illustration. Please notify me if you do not want your commission, or processes of it, posted publicly.
- Refunds are done through Paypal, but if a commission has reached the lineart stage, half of the payment will be kept as compensation for the labor and time investment of the artist.
- I will not give the full-sized, unwatermarked artwork you paid for to anyone but you. You, in turn, must not post the unwatermarked artwork on any public site, chat, or print it. Finding your commissioned artwork
