I updated the copy based on Captain Charlie's advice.

1. Who Is Reading This Copy?

Ana 28, just moved into a new house with her husband and two kids and noticed a couple of cockroaches running around. Ana is a very clean and hygienic person, everything in her home needs to be tidy and in its place.

Pains:

• The thought of cockroaches ruining her food makes her gag

The presence of cockroaches makes her feel disgusted

- She can't take a shower or fall asleep peacefully because she fears the cockroaches will crawl over her She is constantly on edge because she has to dodge them every day She fears her family will get a disease from cockroaches. No matter how much she cleans after the cockroaches the mess is still there
- She feels powerless because she has no control over the situation She is embarrassed for having cockroaches, if people found out she has them in her house they'll think she is a slob.
- She fears someone coming uninvited and seeing the cockroaches.
- 2. Where Are They At Right Now(emotionally, physically, problems and dreams)?
- Where is she in the funnel:

She is looking for a reliable pest control company to get rid of her cockroaches. She searched on Google for "pest ### control near me" and clicked on this website. The main emotions she feels are:

Disgust and fear

- Anxiety and stress Frustration and helplessness Shame and embarrassment Isolation and loneliness
- Anger and resentment Desires:

1. Get intrigued by the copy.

4. Believe the company is professional.

• Dreaming of a day without dodging roaches, just relaxing without the pest parade. • She is hoping for a healthy, disease-free space for herself and her family. Dreaming of a tidy home where cleaning efforts pay off. Wishing for a sense of control over the pest situation.

Dreaming of a shame-free home, where no one judges based on bug battles. Imagine social gatherings without the fear of roach revelations.

• Wishing for a kitchen filled with tasty meals, untouched by pesky roaches.

- 3. What Do I Want Them To Do? I want them to fully trust this company to get rid of their cockroach problem.

After gaining their trust, I want them to fill out the form or directly call the company to schedule a service.

3. Visualize what will happen if they don't do anything or visualize the relief of taking care of their cockroaches.

• Dreaming of a home without cockroach chaos, where everything stays squeaky clean.

• Longing for carefree showers and peaceful sleep, minus the creepy-crawly worries.

4. What Are The Steps They Need To Experience To Take The Action?

2. Believe that this is the company that can take care of their cockroaches.

- 5. Amplify their pain/desire to learn more or do the CTA.

- ROADBLOCK

The readers are aware of their problems, and what I can do as a copywriter is to amplify their pain/desire by future

What most pest control companies do is they just offer to get rid of their problems(pests). What I did here is I told the reader that we don't just spray, and introduced a new 4-step process(still working on the name I know it's boring) for a

Design and Images. This is my first time designing a webpage, so I'm not entirely sure if the color and overall design complement the copy. As for the images, these are the best ones that I found but I know they need to be more relevant, some images aren't even pest control technicians they're construction inspectors.

I took the design and inspiration for the copy from this top player, I added some things they don't have on their website

The {Pest} in the headline changes every 5 seconds, so for the first 5 seconds it will be cockroaches, after the 5

There are two reasons why I added this feature:

seconds passed it will display ants, and so on. The same goes for the {Pest} at the website's footer.

2. It's more personal because the pest in the headline can be the one they are dealing with.
