

December's 1st

If your videos are stuck between 0-100 followers, it's because your content strategy just fucking sucks. Instead of posting content to feel good, start using this step-by-step strategy now

- For your first 100 followers, you need to specify a value proposition. For example, what sets you apart as a fitness coach, that will make people follow you rather than others?
Then try having at least 12 posts on your account. It doesn't matter if they don't get likes or views, they just need to be there
- Your next goal should be 1000 followers. Try testing different types of content. Go to your explore page, find the posts with good engagement that you can create, and create them. Do this consistently enough to get to your first 1000 followers.
- Then, you must be looking for your first 5k followers. Analyze! See what posts you've shared for getting to 1k followers have done well? And then keep posting based on that strategy and again, be consistent until you have 5k followers. Also after your first 1k followers, you need to start posting stories. Try to build authority and try doing something that will make your audience unique to you.
- I know this video is already too long, but if you want the step-by-step strategy for getting to 10k followers, then comment me the word 10k and I'll send you the free blueprint for getting to 10k followers. And again (the video starts again)

I tried TRW for a month...

I tried Andrew Tate's The Real World for a month, and here's what happened:

First, I went and shoveled some snow so I could make $49 to join. After joining the platform, things started to get tough, because I had to choose a skill from the 'X' amount of skills they teach inside this platform, and finally, I decided to choose copywriting. I went all in for 3 days on this campus, and based on what they taught me inside this campus, I closed my first client within my third day. Next, I had to apply what I learned on this campus to create actual results for my client. So I worked my ass off and guess what? I made him over 'X' amount of money in profit, which led him to pay me 'X' amount of money plus, a testimonial. Then I used this testimonial and closed another retainer-based client for 'X' per month. Then I took all that money and opened a trade based on the signals of The Real World's crypto professor and made an 'X' amount of profit. So overall, we made this amount of money within a month of being in TRW. If you wanna make the same results as I did, or even more, then click the link on the bio and start earning now! And yesterday, some guy told me that (the video keeps repeating and it increases my watch time)

How much money for snow shoveling

Here is how much money I can make in 3 hours of snow shoveling...

It's 4 o'clock right now which means I'll be grinding out there till 7 p.m. So first, I went to Lowe's and bought a shovel for 'X' bucks. Then I got a protein shake from 7-Eleven and started working. I went door to door asking if someone wanted me to shovel the snow for them for 'X' minutes until I found someone who was interested. We agreed on $30 shoveling their drive-thru and pathway. Got that done in 'X' minutes and got back to work again. I shoveled 'X' more people's/house's snow, and by 7 pm, we made 'X' bucks from doing an easy fuck thing that people don't do because they are lazy. And this reminds me of the quote from Andrew Tate that said: "Money is everywhere, you just need to work hard for it". So (the video starts again)

Happiness isn't real

Sometimes, you cannot be happy. You need to be sad, but guess what? You still need to get the work done!

I broke up with my girl! You live in bad conditions

I am feeling depressed! You are responsible for people who believe in you

I am down a bit! People count on you

I need a rest day! Your dad is old, he should be retired by now

I wanna be normal! You are below normal now, gotta fix it.

Life is going to suck, no matter what. If you're at war, and they tell you your wife just died, you cannot sit there and cope. Sure, you can be sad. I'll be sad, you'll be sad, everyone will be sad, but you've got a task at hand. Save your country and survive!