Bio: Frostbite Puck is a Pegasus pony who currently resides in the kingdom of Canterlot. Born and raised in Port Saddleow, he hails from a large family of Ice Hockey playing ponies. However, even though he was naturally skilled at being an ice hockey player, one time on the way home from practice at the young age of 13, he seen a mugging in progress. He quickly jumped into action attempting to fend off the 2 attackers aiding a nearby guard who also spotted the commotion and together they fought to protect the filly under attack

The royal guard turned out to be the head officer in the Equestrian Military and asked him to come back to the castle to learn the ways of being part of the guard. Frostbite soon made a name for himself at training camp, rather infamously. On close-perimeter duty, he was on hard-watch of Celestia, positioned outside her dorm. During basic training before being given this job, he was told by his chief " If you ever hear the princess scream...you get the HELL in there" One evening, he heard the princess screaming and burst in the room...only to see the princess taking a shower, screaming due to the water being too cold. He tried to avert his eyes and ended up slipping, knocking himself unconscious. Ever since that day, he has been playfully referred to as "Frostbite Perv" by the other lower class guards. Humble and ditzy, Frostbite is an honest, good pony that is always up for helping his friends.
