I've been going through the results,and breaking them down to make different comparisons. The numbers aren't high enough to get some definitive trends, but what we have already is interesting. I wanted to see if there was a difference in the number of believers/non-believers/haven't-made-up-their-mind believers according to the following categories :

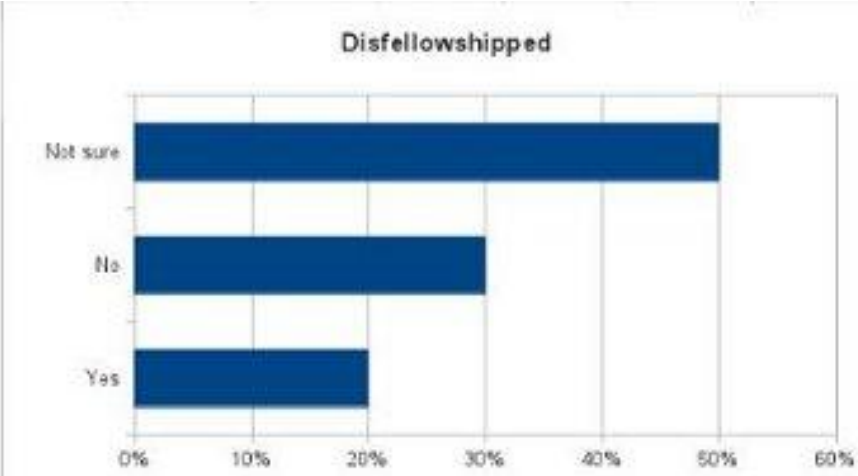

- disassociated
- disfellowshipped
- fading (no longer attending meetings)
- fading (still attending meetings)/regular publisher
- never baptized

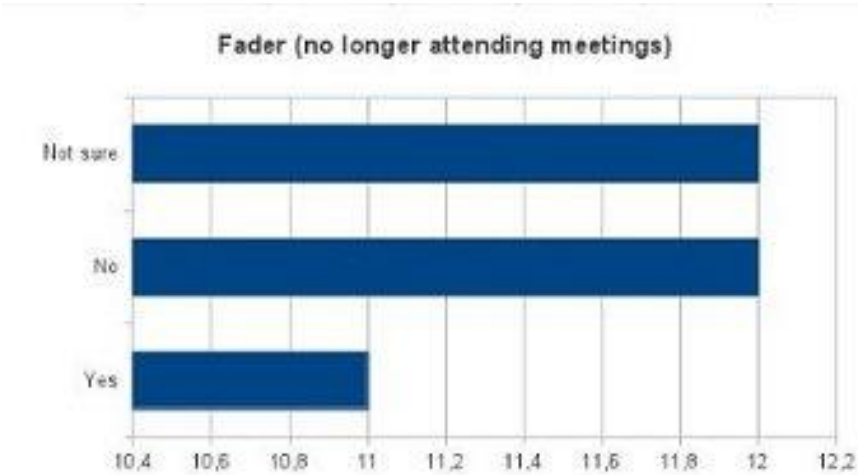

And these are the results I got :
(The graph on the left shows the actual numbers, the one on the right shows the percentages)
