Hazel Grace Lancaster is a sharp introverted teenage girl who is suffering from the rare lung disease that forces her to use an oxygen pipe everytime. She is deeply interested in literature and her favourite book is An Imperial Affliction whose ending was always a source of fascination for her. The book ends in the middle and she carves to know the ending. Recently she is having weird dreams containing some cryptic texts of the same book. Initially she thought it was just the stress but these dreams persisted and she was not sure what to do. Hazel joined the support group for the people suffering from cancer on the advice of her mother. There she met Augustus Waters, a charming young man. Slowly she felt attracted towards him and they became friends. She shared her nightmares with him and together they decided to visit Amsterdam to meet the author of the book Peter Van Heuton to get the answer to all this. Augustus was suffering from cancer and his condition was getting worse but he still agreed to accompany Hazel who was unaware of this fact. When they reached Van Heuton's place they were shocked to find the condition of the apartment. It was all messy and dirty and Van Heuton was kind of a weird person. He was short tempered and certainly not happy to see two kids there in his apartment. While they were talking to Van Heuton , Hazel sensed something extraordinary in the house. Van Heuton was getting impatient and he told both of them to get out of the house. But this would not prevent the young duo from investigating further. Later during the night they break into the author's house. They went into the house and there they found the secret underground bunker. They were shocked to see the items that were present there. There were photos of children who were almost the same age as Hazel and Augustus. There was also the signed copy of The Imperial Affliction lying there along with the medical reports. But their reports were crossed over and it was difficult to find what was actually written in them. Augustus advised that they should collect the evidence and inform the police about this and he sensed some great conspiracy behind it. As they were about to leave Van Heuton came in front of them. Frightened by the sudden appearance of the author, Hazel and Augustus felt paralyzed unable to think. Van Heuton in full rage attacked Hazel but Augustus quickly pushed back him and Hazel struck him with the wood leaving the author unconscious. They both ran away to their hotels and booked the night flight to leave this place at once. Upon reaching Amsterdam Hazel's condition became very critical and the doctor advised her to stay under observation. She and Augutus decided that whoever would live ahead would uncover this scandal to the world. Augustus also undergoes the operation but he was not able to survive further. Hazel recovered but devastated by Augustus's loss she made it her life's mission to find the reality of the scandal.
