Godric Gryffindor created Gryffindor, Salazar Slytherin created Slytherin, Rowena Ravenclaw created Ravenclaw, and Helga Hufflepuff created Hufflepuff. What history does not tell us is that there is a house devoted to protecting Hogwarts through the shadows. This is the story of the Umbraven house and its legacy at Hogwarts.

The secret house of Umbraven was established at the same time as the other four houses, and it was created for the most discreet, mentally strong, and resilient person. This was the house that protected Hogwarts in the shadows. According to the four leaders of Hogwarts, someone had to protect Hogwarts from internal and external conflicts. Salazar and Godric's best friend, Izumi Umbraven, took on the role of founder. The four main houses enchanted a raven pin to represent the Umbraven house. This pin acts similarly to the Sorting Hat, where it chooses the successor of the house and enchants its user with the Obliviate spell. After the person's death, everyone in the world loses their memories of the person from the Umbraven house. Unlike the other houses, the Umbraven house has only one student who has access to the Umbraven legacy memories from the magical pin.

To keep this house secret from the other houses, the four leaders agreed to erase their memories of the Umbraven house, and Izumi became the first secret protector of Hogwarts. After the secret creation of Umbraven, Izumi had to join one of the four houses. Due to Salazar's suspicious actions, Izumi joined Slytherin to spy on her friend. Her suspicions were confirmed when Salazar and Godric had a disagreement over the possible future students of Hogwarts. According to Salazar, only pure-blooded students could enter the school, while Godric reiterated that all students had the right to be at Hogwarts.

Salazar asks Izumi if she wants to join the rebellion against Gryffindor. Salazar emphasizes that there is a giant monster in the chamber he built, the Chamber of Secrets. And it was this monster that would give them victory in this civil war. Izumi accepts Salazar's proposal and secretly informs Godric of Slytherin's advances. Godric is not surprised and warns Izumi that he is ready for a civil war if necessary.

Shocked and hurt by the fact that her two best friends are on the brink of a civil war, Izumi takes the initiative and tries to stop Salazar. Izumi sneaks into the Chamber of Secrets and is surprised to find it empty. Salazar reveals that he already knew Izumi would betray him sooner or later. Izumi asks about the giant monster, and Salazar points his wand at his former best friend. Salazar uses dark arts and curses Izumi into a basilisk. Before succumbing to the curse, Izumi manages to seal the Chamber of Secrets and successfully delays her transformation by turning into a basilisk egg. Salazar becomes trapped in the Chamber of Secrets, and the civil war is thus avoided.

The Umbraven house pin managed to escape before the chamber was sealed and successfully chose its next successor. Despite everyone at Hogwarts forgetting Izumi, her legacy continues through the Umbraven house. Being a student of the Umbraven house means being ready to sacrifice oneself for Hogwarts. The student will never receive praise and will always be forgotten by their friends. Despite these sacrifices, the Umbraven house is the most essential house at Hogwarts.
