The references using a Guide to APA Referencing Style that adjusted to the Bibliography. Contains "Introduction" and "Research Purpose/aim". It needed to supported by adequate literature and sources, especially primary references and clearly visible progress of the material under study. Writing using Times New Roman 12 with 1.5 spacing.

Methods

This section describes the type and design of research, location and time of research, population and sample (in quantitative research) and research informants (in qualitative research). Explain the sampling/informant sampling technique, sample/informant criteria, data collection techniques and data analysis performed. Detail explanation for sampling and instrument needed to verify the quality of the manuscript. The source of the instrument, validity and reliability of the instrument, the name of instrument including its citation and reference, how to use the instrument

Quantitative Study (Study design, Sample, Instrument, Intervention, Data Collection, Data Analysis, Ethical Consideration)

Qualitative Study (study design, informants, data collection, data analysis, trustworthiness, ethical consideration)

For research using tools and materials, it is necessary to write down the specifications of the tools and materials used Qualitative research such as case studies, phenomenology, ethnography, etc., needs to add a description regarding checking the validity of research results. At the end of the materials and methods the author must write down ethical clearance. using organizing writing into sub-headings Each sub-headings is bold (Bold). The results section describes the data on the characteristics of the research subjects, univariate analysis, bivariate analysis and multivariate analysis (if any). Interpretation of research results is made in a narrative form that is presented before the presentation of tables or figures. A maximum of 5 tables and or pictures are presented. Tables and figures must be clearly legible. For qualitative research, informants' statements are printed in italics and left-aligned with 1 space.

Table Writing

The sources of references in the discussion must meet the scientific requirements (journal, textbook or proceeding). The explanation must be in line with the result and supported cohesively. The discussion must be give strong support and they are not repetition from the introduction.

Conclusion

The conclusion is a summary of the research results which refers to the research objectives. Suggestions are prepared based on the research findings that have been discussed. Suggestions can refer to practical actions, the development of new theories, and/or further research. Paragraphs begin with a word that is indented into 5 digits and may not use bullets or numbers. Displayed in one paragraph. Writing using Times New Roman 12 with 1.5 spacing.
