Impact of Work:

At Highland Park, I started out helping students individually with the work they needed to get done. Now I am in the classroom taking part in the lesson and helping students with the afterward homework who need it.

Personal Growth:

I've learned to adapt to students' needs and what they understand best. This has helped me grow in my ability to help students.

Career Impact:

I plan to be a teacher one day, so through this experience, I've gained a better understanding on how to help students in the classroom. I also have learned how to find a student's preferred way of learning or how to simplify things in a way that they can understand.
