*SPOILERS ish :(((((((( + this book contains lots of violence*

START HERE: This month I read "The Locked Door" by Freida McFadden. This book follows Nora, a surgeon who is fighting against her history. Nora's father was a serial killer, and all she wants is to be apart from her father. But, weird "coincidences" keep happening so she's on her toes, worried that her dad's back and out of jail. . Then, a copy-cat killer comes to town and the police assume it's her. Will Nora find the true killer? I think the theme of this book is that ignoring someone's problems will usually make them come back.

I gave this book a 3.5 ★, the killer was not very predictable, but who it was and why they did it was extremely unrealistic and unconvincing. If you enjoy thrillers then you would definitely enjoy this book along with a few other Freida McFadden books. If you enjoyed this book, you might like "The Housemaid" or her newest book, "The Coworker".
