

Straight Through The Middle

Can you think of a time in your past when you avoided going through something difficult...even if you knew deep down you needed to do it?

Are you avoiding doing something in your life right now?

What is one thing that you can commit to doing this week to take your first step straight down the middle?