ABSTRACT

Research articles must have the main text prefaced with an abstract of no more than 250 words summarizing the main arguments and conclusions of the article. The abstract should consist of: short background, research purposes or aims of programs, method, results and findings, and conclusion. The abstract should stand alone, meaning that there is must no citation in the Abstract. This must have the heading "Abstract" and be easily identified from the start of the main text. A list of up to five keywords may be placed below the abstract. Keywords should be arranged alphabetically and separated by semicolons (;). The Abstract and Keywords should also be added to the metadata when making the initial online submission.

Keywords: Title; Research; Legal; Indonesia

INTRODUCTION

The Introduction chapter contains the background of the problems, gap analyses and problems, and previous state-of-the-art research. Gap Analysis and Problems contain gaps between das solen (description of provisions, principles, principles, applicable legal doctrine) and das sein (description of empirical facts) and also contain a description of why research needs to be done, and or what is unique about this research compared to previous research. Besides that, there must also be research objectives, while the state of the art contains a description of research studies compared to previous research studies published in the Journal (at least refer to 5 Articles in 3 Accredited National Journals and 2 International Journals).

The introduction should be clear and provide the issue to be discussed in the manuscript. Before the objective, authors should provide an adequate background, and very short literature survey in order to record the existing solutions, to show which is the best of previous researches, to show the main limitation of the previous researches, to show what do you hope to achieve (to solve the limitation), and to show the scientific merit or novelties of the paper. At the end of the paragraph, the author/s should end with a comment on the significance concerning identification of the issue and objective of the research.

METHOD

The method is optional for original research articles. This method is written in descriptive form and should provide a statement regarding the methodology of the research. This method as much as possible gives an idea to the reader through the methods used. This Method is optional, only for original research articles.

DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS

This section is the most important section of your article. The analysis and results of the research should be clear and concise. The results should summarize (scientific) findings rather than providing data in great detail. Please highlight differences between your results or findings and the previous publications by other researchers.

Sub-heading of the discussion

Following main headings should be provided in the manuscript while preparing. The separation between main headings, subheadings and sub-sub headings should be numbered in the manuscript with following example:

Sub-heading of the discussion

Tables and Figures are presented center and cited in the manuscript. The figures should be clearly readable and at least have a resolution of 300 DPI (Dots Per Inch) for good printing quality. Table made with the open model (without the vertical lines) as shown below:

CONCLUSION

The concluding chapter basically contains the essence of the study and is also the answer to the problems studied in the article. Therefore, the preparation of the conclusion chapter should be adjusted to the order of the existing issues. In addition to containing the essence of the study, the conclusions can also be used to test whether or not research or study objectives are achieved.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Recognize those who helped in the research, especially funding supporters of your research. Include individuals who have assisted you in your study: Advisors, Financial supporters, or may other supporter i.e. Proof-readers, Typists, and Suppliers who may have given materials

REFERENCES

References in both research and conceptual articles contain all the references used in the study. References should be published at maximum in the last 10 (ten) years. The composition of the bibliography should be the primary sources (80%) i.e. national journals, international journals, theses, dissertations, and national and international conference proceedings. Other sources (20%) may be books or other reference sources. Each article must contain at least 20 (twenty) references and only references are used as excerpts that may be written in the References. Writing References are grouped according to the type of reference, for example, Books, Journal Articles, Online Sources, etc.

References at the end of the manuscript should be written in Canadian Guide to Uniform Legal Citation (McGill Guide) Citation Style. Please use Reference Manager Applications like Mendeley, etc. All publications cited in the text should be included as a list of references, arranged alphabetically by author.
