

Don't Blame Me Season 6, Episode 22

Call 1:

So hi Meghan and Melisa and happy quarantine. I'm twenty-two. I'm an Aries. And I just have a little bit of something I want advice on. I've been friends with benefits with this one guy for about three years. I don't know his zodiac sign. So I don't know that much about him. However, he just started recently dating a girl and told me that he doesn't want to hook up with me anymore, which is fine, respect that, I got plenty of hoes on the side. However, he messages me once a week asking for pictures or videos and you know, I'm going to be completely honest. I have sent a few pictures a couple of times and I went on with sexting and getting attention from him, but then I started to feel bad because I wouldn't want that done to me. So I told him I'm not going to do that anymore for respect out of his girlfriend and he said that they're not that serious and if he is messaging me, then that means it's okay for me to be sending photos and pictures and whatever. I was like so like taken back by that that that just means it's okay. So basically he's an asshole which never bothered me because I wasn't looking to date him, just fuck. Should I tell the girlfriend? I don't have proof of it because it was all happened on Snapchat and I don't save my messages and neither does he. So basically it would be all word of mouth, she'd have to believe me. So I don't know and then I don't want to tell her because I'm not trying to gain anything out of it besides like let this girl know what he's doing and that he said it's okay if he messages me first cuz that means it's okay and they're not that serious, but I don't even know if they're that serious. I don't have him or her on social media so I don't really know, but I do know her name, but I guess all I'm asking is should I tell her. All right. Thanks. That was kind of messy. Thank you. Bye.

Call 2:

Hi, Meghan and Melisa and probably no guest because quarantine, I am twenty-five. I'm a Pisces sun, Virgo moon and Leo rising, got a lot going on there. I'm calling because I have a girl that I want to be friends with, we have been friends like ten years ago like back in junior high school and then her and I kind of developed a crush on each other and we sort of hooked up at one point. I believe she was dating her current boyfriend at the time. So her and her boyfriend has been together at least four years. That's how old their daughter is. And I've been with my boyfriend 3 and 1/2 years, pretty much four years cuz we talked for six months before that. So my friend's mom reached out to me because my friend has just been super lonely. Basically, she just works and is a mom and that's about it. I you know, I went to go visit her work and it was great. She unblocked my phone number. And you know, we were planning to like reconnect even more and whatnot. However, she ended up blocking my phone number again. I'm assuming it's her boyfriend. And I feel weird just like sneaking around like I don't want to have to hide from her boyfriend. It feels weird, it feels intimate and it feels wrong like maybe I'm romanticizing it but it almost feels romantic and intimate to kind of like sneak around and hide it from him and then I'm afraid that maybe I might start romanticising this and like I don't know develop more feelings for her. So basically my question is, how do I try to pursue this friendship? Should I just say fuck it and not even worry about it. Like let her do her thing. I don't know. I could really use some advice. So thank you so much. I love you guys so much. Your podcast is fucking amazing. Love you guys. Bye.

Call 3:

Hey, Meghan and Melisa. So my issue is, my sister has not been working for the past few months. She quit her job awhile ago because it just it wasn't what she wanted anymore and I get that. I definitely get that especially with the current time. But my issue with that her still expecting me to be her primary babysitter for my one year old nephew who I love to bits like he is the light of my life, like I would do anything for the kid. but Since she hasn't had a job. She has stopped paying me for the days that I watch him. But yet when I can't watch him and her step-daughter can she still pays her, even though when she watches him, it's literally just for an hour most of the time and she just sits on the couch and watches Frozen with him. As where I will literally be there from like 7, 8:00 in the morning until like 9:00 at night. And I how do I go about telling her that like I would appreciate getting paid again or else I'm going to stop watching him even though I don't want to not see him? But I just it's frustrating not getting paid for the work that you're doing because it is on my days off from my full-time job that I watch him. And I'm a CNA. So I literally spend my life taking care of people. So then on my days off to take care of people again, it's just I don't know. I would just like to get paid and I don't know how to go about telling her without seeming rude about it. I don't know if you could help, that'd be nice. I other way hope you guys have a great rest of your day. K byeeeee!

Don't Blame Me Season 6, Episode 22

Call 4:

Hi, Melisa, and Meghan, the other day. I sent a one of the messages and it wasn't, it was all over the place. So I'm going to start over . Now that I've kind of calmed down and have like all the information. So the other day my fiance told me that he found out something about a co-worker. He is a manager at a like a fast food chain, and he found out from another co-worker that one of his colleagues who works there are a former porn star and I kind of did my research cuz it made me kind of uncomfortable. and she's like she was a semi-famous porn star like she's on big porn channels and she is ranked pretty high on Pornhub all this stuff and for background he used to has a porn addiction and he's gotten over that he doesn't watch porn anymore. We talk about it like all the time, not in a negative way, but just anytime he has feelings or anything we talk about that. So he doesn't go back to that addiction and I just feel really uncomfortable knowing that he works with this person. He talks to her almost every day and I just feel so uncomfortable knowing that he's working with like a porn star. She still has like an active porn star Twitter where she like sends Snapchats and stuff and I don't have anything against sex work at all. I feel like that's like something that people do and it's like okay, but I'm just afraid that this is going to trigger his porn addiction again. Because he knows this girl. She's really pretty like now he knows that she's a porn star and I know that he's looked over her page because a co-worker showed it. So, I don't know. I'm just anxious and all these things. Hopefully you guys can help me not feel so anxious. Sorry for sending two messages. Just love your guys' show bye.

Don't Blame Them:

Hi, I'm --- and I'm calling in response to the "we grew up in a cult" episode and about the girl who grew up in a cult. So I'm an ex-Mormon, I used to be a Mormon, which a lot of ex-members consider to be a cult and call it a cult and I don't know whether that girl grew up in Mormonism or just another cult that has the same kind of thoughts about sex, but it all felt very familiar. And what I wanted to say that I think could be useful for her to hear is that her husband, partner? I can't remember the pronouns. That's why she used both. What they are probably getting out the experience of you know, exploring their sexuality and their own is the sense of reclaiming their sexuality because in those puritanical belief systems like Mormonism and whatever other cult where there's so many shame-based teachings around sex, you're taught that you know your sexuality belongs to your husband or wife and I think it's really damaging to never get to like feel like your sexuality is your own, you know, and so my sense given that she said she were having regular sex and that she had told him to come to her if he was feeling horny. Yeah, that's what he's getting out of it is reclaiming his sexuality as his own but maybe not sure, who knows? Love the podcast, you guys have been killing it. Bye!