Joshua Ruder

Joshua Ruder is primarily a figurative sculptor living and working in Greenfield, MA. He studied Visual Art at Brown University where he graduated with honors. Joshua creates sculptures using stone and metal that are considered beyond useful, looking beyond their cracked facades to imagine the beauty contained within, and then working to bring that out.

His journey as an artist has been a process of constantly exploring both the possibilities and limitations of different materials. Steel, stone, ceramics, plaster, wood, and glass all find a place in different ways within Josh's work. After earning a degree in Visual Art from Brown University, Josh went on to study at RISD as well as successfully completing a sculpture course in bronze casting and welding along with ceramics and metal casting with sand molds. During two formative summers at The Carving Studio and Sculpture Center in West Rutland, VT, he began carving marble combining it with metal, wood, and glass that he salvaged from the former quarry site.

Joshua's work is evocative, delicate, thoughtful and is a wonderful addition to the JS Galleries.
