I am a graduating Fashion Media and Marketing student with a specialism in fashion photography. For my final project, I've created work inspired by Greek mythology and the gods. I wished to explore how ancient myths influence media and pop culture and how they are represented in the modern era. I created a series of editorials using creative concepts and thoughtful styling to represent these Gods through a contemporary lens, raising the question “how would these Gods look now?” By blending historical influence with modern imagery, I aim to create striking, narrative-driven visuals that invite viewers to recognise familiar myths in new and unexpected ways.
