Kelley Bothe, LICSW, is a Focusing-Oriented Therapist and a Certified Focusing Trainer who has worked as a psychotherapist for over 35 years in the greater Boston area. During the past eight years, she has taught Focusing Practice Groups and Focusing for Clinicians. In her private practice, Kelley works with adults in individual therapy, and for many years led therapy groups for men and women.

Cathy Cornell, LICSW, has practiced social work in hospitals, mental health clinics and a community advocacy organization. In her private practice, she sees individual clients, mostly elders. She is a Focusing-Oriented Therapist and Certified Focusing Trainer. She has taught workshops on Focusing and Listening to clinicians, to beginning Focusers and to friends. Focusing is deeply and gratefully integrated into her professional and personal life.

Joan Klagsbrun, Ph.D., is a psychologist in private practice, and was a Lesley University faculty member for forty years. She has taught Focusing nationally and internationally for many decades, including trainings for the public and for mental health practitioners. She is a Focusing Coordinator and was a long-time board member of the International Focusing Institute. Teaching Focusing is a passion of hers.

Julie Ramsey, LICSW, Certified Focusing-Oriented Therapist, is a psychotherapist in the Boston, MA area and has been practicing for over forty years. She is a Coordinator for TIFI, teaching Focusing in small groups, and has presented at TIFI's Roundtables. She discovered Focusing over a decade ago. It has deepened her work and enriched all aspects of her life.