

Quoted directly from our book.

“It was 7th grade and I first came out to my three friends. They kept the secret and told me to tell this one person. I did because I really liked them. They treated me great until they outed me to the entire grade by telling everyone, and backstabbing me by blocking me that summer. Never had a real conversation since. It has caused a lot of trauma that I’m still dealing with today. So don’t be rude to people because we’re all humans and everyone deserves to be treated with respect.”
