OVERVIEW & INSTRUCTIONS

This document is meant to guide you in the writing of an Original Research manuscript to submit to *J-TICH. It contains formatting guidelines required for your entire article. Each section that must be present in your article is described and formatting requirements unique to a section are also stated.

Remember that this is a template you can use to pull your article together but is not what you submit to J-TICH. To make this document editable, go to File > Download or File > Make a Copy and use that version. When you are ready to submit, take the content from the boxes in this template, paste them into a Word document, and use the APA Style Guide to ensure that your submission is formatted accurately and grammatically correct.

PURPOSE of an ORIGINAL RESEARCH ARTICLE

To share research that takes a trauma-informed approach to food insecurity, and healthy communities, and embodies equity.

The project should be framed using an asset-based approach. For more details on this approach, view Ethical Storytelling & Asset-Framing: A Toolkit for Centering Equity when Communicating Programmatic Success.

FORMATTING GUIDELINES

For details on formatting guidelines for each section of your submission, please refer to this document, Writing Guidelines & Formatting Requirements - Original Research
