Great video, I have done dropshipping for couple of years when CPC was super low on FB. This business model still works and work well. However, I started two years ago Amazon FBA and already crossed 150k\month and ditched my DS store. I noticed everyone keeps the secrets for themselves, I understood that after reading an eBook. No one is talking on how to outrank competitors properly (Which is one of the most important thing), how to gain traffic outside Amazon (Besides influencers marketing), how to do proper off site SEO to gain additional traffic etc...

Current state

You have inspired me Sharif. I built my first store very simple but didn't know how to drive traffic. The next year in 2018 I built another store and listed a moon lamp. My friend ordered and there was trouble with oberlo. She did get it but it never showed. Update my store is still there and I decided to resume and just rename it. Oberlo is gone and I'm going to use Dsers after chatting with Shopify on how to reactivate and change name. I paid for a video ad when I had my skin salon so if I do not like AliExpress vids or I want another I will use band off ads because it looks very good. Thank you 😊

I like to see that dropshipping as a business model is still a thing even though many people claim it's dead. I think the rise of TikTok with its great marketing opportunity was the main reason for dropshipping to become popular again. Especially nowadays when you have tools like Famester to boost your content and make everything faster.

Im 14 and for 2 months I have really been thinking about getting into drop shipping and now I am really going to research about drop shipping and this video is going to really help me when I start my shop!

When you finally find your own product to sell, do you create your own packaging? Like, from AliExpress to your client's hand, how does that process work? Do you order it to yourself, re-brand the item with your own packaging, and then send it to your client?

Dropshipping is not dead fortunately. It's all about choosing right winning products. I personally like to use WiinnerZilla for finding hot trending products, they even give a bunch of videos and gifs to use for fb ads or tiktok ads. And I can use chat gpt to generate some high-conversion descriptions if I am not satisfied with what I get. Last 2 weeks I had over 300 sales on my shopify store in pets niche.

Thanks for actually being honest man. Many dropship youtubers usually lie about the revenew. Also you showed the complete process which is really helpful for beginners. Overall, a great video.

The only problem I'm having is, I found the Alibaba product I want to use, I can use your video to setup tik tok ads and build Shopify site but the product shipping 2-3weeks out is the issue. I feel like 75% of people will cancel the order as soon as they know it's going to take hella long Thanks bud for keepin us financially Educated! Regardless of how bad it gets on the economy, I still make over $22,000 every single week.

Roadblocks

Really liked the video. Usually these videos annoy me because they encourage us to test saturated trash and lose money but you did address that at the end with marketing angles. If you ever make an in depth video and examples of marketing an already selling product from a different angle I would really get a lot of value from it.

Hey man, hope you see this comment. Love your videos. I have been trying to follow your steps but I happened to live outside of the US or those major countries. I feel that it's reason I'm struggling to get views or traffic to my social media let alone my store. Any advice is appreciated. Cheers.

Hey sharif your very knowledgeable and seem genuine I've been trying to get in the industry over a year but lost a ton of money with people not really in the business or really not helping . Do you have a mentorship or a course I can get in and learn the business first continue with the good videos and very knowledgeable to the business I appreciate the transparency

Hey im just confused on what to put for the business name as I'm planning on testing different products out to find a winner... do I put it as the first product I find and then title the new campaigns the other products being tested or what do you recommend?
