

Illusion vs Reality

As we wake to see our reality
Some can see it is a true tragedy
Acknowledgement is a variety
To the ones living in what we call a 'society'

Some fear the authority
Making them the minority
But majority fight
Channel their "right"
Start making the world look a bit more black and white

With a bullet wound or a scared face,
Don't need nothing more than some human race
But all they asked was to put a mask, people thought they needed to retaliate
Their rights were "at risk", the irony now since all their data are saved on a disc

Didn't you see my mom almost died last night!
Put your mask on, save her life
Authority don't care unless there is money to spare
They made their life easier, when they were in a despair
Ever heard of population control?
But even that took a toll, poor mother nature her hair is on fire, and her feet are so cold

History books burned to dust, nothing left to compare our trust
It's a one man's fight, let's see who wins and makes it to daylight
Or stuck seeing the sky the same colour of our deceased past-life

Was it a shot or a firework, I'm living in an illusion
Is it 2090 and in we hide from fear of captivity delusion, or is it 2020 and are only worries was a simple mask and looking for a conclusion?
