

The scene opens with a TV showing a sports story on WBN, a long running station out of Boston, we don't get the reporter's name but he seems in his early to mid 40's as they hear him start speaking.

Reporter: Finally tonight in sports, Massachusetts wrestling legend Kyle Maieson is still hospitalized at Boston General Hospital after suffering from a stroke on Friday. His family has been holding vigil for the now 87 year old who's local wrestling company MSWF back in the day was a cornerstone of the wrestling scene in Boston. The Maieson family in general has been keeping quiet just releasing a few short statements, the most recent was last night when Reina Maieson, the wife of Kyle for over 35 years said quote "Kyle is resting soundly, he has lost some of his movement on his left side from the stroke, the doctors are keeping an eye on him and hopefully he will be back home soon we pray."

Reporter: A few of the old MSWF roster has made statements including Kyle adopted son Johnny Napalm who is working for SHOOT Project once again had these comments just last night.

The scene cuts to Napalm standing outside his bar The Blacklist wearing some rather nice looking work shirt and work pants.

Napalm: The news came to a shock to me, but I do know that my dad has been holding together well, the news of his stroke affected me so I took time off from SHOOT because of this, but I know my dad would of told me to keep moving forward, I know I don't have many years left in my career. I want to make the most of it, no matter the cost to my own body.

"no...matter...the..CoSt.."

The video distorts as does the camera gives out digital distortion as we see a symbol some of SHOOT's faithful remember well.

Ah the shit has hit the fan as the scene cuts to black

“Did you miss me?”

The scene cuts in with digital distortion, it seems Napalm’s head must be fucked after all that’s going on but behind him in this factory is that logo above and a very pissed off Johnny Napalm.

“I take that as a no, but honestly I am not here to cause issues this time.”

Napalm adjusts his chair; it scrapes on the concrete floor as the tights are not purple and red, they are all red, so are his shoes, the black symbol on each boot.

“You see, there are plenty of problems. Not everyone sees them yet, but I promise you they will appear soon enough. If you saw the mess that is going on, The Empire seems to be holding court, reclaiming those tag belts, but that’s not my fucking problem. What is my problem?”

Napalm looks into the camera the picture digitally distorts again.

“You see, my issues are not just one group.. It’s the amount of them, too many to count and not many to stand against them.”

“I will give Thunderwolf and LAZ credit, at least they tried. Didn’t help that everything went to shit when the Collins Twins decided to throw everyone for a loop. So many issues inside SHOOT and yet, I’m here alone because of what happened in that tag match. I made my peace with it. But there is one I do want to address.”

“You see Izzy, No one is going to doubt your talent after all this, congrats on your win, but before you consider me dead and throw out another open challenge. I’m going to throw a monkey wrench in your plans, cause contrary to what some people say, I do make sure I do have a rematch clause, but it seems someone is hellbent on getting her shots in early so I’m going to let her try, because I know that family all too well.”

“And honestly after all the bullshit that happened at Daybreak. I know many used to call the older Seton a “cunt” on numerous occasions. It seems her little sister didn’t fall far from the family tree.”

Napalm lets out a bit of a chuckle

“So Madison, it seems you finally got your wish. You are in wrestling, I must admit you got plenty of guts to do so, but it’s your choice of company that I wish to discredit. I watched Zenith 5 honestly. What Laura said was just harkening back to her days when she stabbed another person in the back. She knows who I’m talking about, they don’t send their regards cause he’s enjoying retirement, but from me... well.”

Napalm flips the bird then a double.

“You Setons are so predictable it’s sickening. But, just remember this as Madison tries to win a title here in SHOOT. Just remember who is waiting in the wings, And I don't give a shit if I have to go through both of you. Just makes it easier for me”

“Remember Daybreak, my bold statement, the one everyone overlooked. Just remember I may have lost the Empire State title, but it does not mean I'm out of that contention. And if things go well. Just remember this bitches.”

“I knocked on the door, didn’t say if I was going to open said door.”

“Or kick it off the hinges, either way see you cunts soon I will be coming for my belt, come hell or high water.”

Static