Privacy Policy

Last updated: 16 December 2020

The controller of personal information in relation to this privacy policy is Audioobjects company

1.COLLECTION AND USE OF YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION

Personal information is data that, directly or indirectly, can be used to identify or contact a single person.

You may be asked to provide your personal information anytime you are in contact with Audioobjects products or use product or service. When you create a user account, purchase a product, register your product, download software or updates, Audioobjects may collect a variety of information; including your name, mailing address, phone number, e-mail address, contact preferences, and credit card information as well as information regarding your use of the Services or Products. Audioobjects uses the personal information to communicate with you and to send you important notices, such as information about purchases, information on technical services issues, support, security announcements and changes to our terms, conditions and policies. Audioobjects may also collect and use the personal information to operate and improve its website, services and products, and to make them easier to use for you in future. The personal information may also be used for research and data analysis for the same purpose.

In addition, the personal information allows Audioobjects to keep you informed about new products, software updates and upcoming events. If you do not want to receive such information, you can opt-out anytime by changing your settings at your user account Audioobjects website, products and services may contain links to third party websites, products and services. Information collected by third parties is governed by their privacy practices.

Audioobjects takes precautions to protect the security of your personal information against loss, disclosure, unauthorized use or other misuses.

Audioobjects may, occasionally, modify or update this Privacy Policy by posting the updated Privacy Policy, with a revised “last updated” date at the top of this statement.
