Personality

AS A KITTEN:

Well-meaning and kind, Pluto is a cat who finds great pleasure in helping others. It is of her belief that the noblest path in life is one where she can commit to an altruistic lifestyle. She is devoted to her dreams of becoming a Delta one day — to soothe and assist cats who need a little guidance in life. It is also a highly future-oriented individual who indulges in its vivid fantasies of being a mother to 5 sons and 7 daughters — and, of course, most importantly, she would be with a manly cat who goes by the name of Montgomery, has a short, kinked tail, and the warmest of smiles.

Pluto is overly idealistic in a way that is almost detrimental. It is determined to get its way no matter what, even if... in all honesty, it is not very good at what it seeks out to do. It is blunt, callous, and even insensitive at times when it comes to "helping" cats through their issues. Pluto often doesn't realize that the questions she asks can be at best misguided, and at worst intrusive.

Still, it does its best when it can, and it can give sound advice every now and then, albeit very rarely. She may not be fit for the life of a Delta, but she is still a staunchly loyal cat to Wolf Colony. No matter what lies ahead of her, she will do her utmost to fulfill her duties to the best of her abilities.

History

Life as a Pup

Born to Surveyor Mercury and Packmate Bumble, Pluto entered the world with 5 other siblings: Universe, Mars, Comet, Asteroid, and Meteorite. Middle child of the bunch, she was just as loved as all of her littermates, and got along with all of them well. Never one to overindulge in play fights, Pluto preferred to eagerly observe the other cats of the colony. She was excited to become a true member of Wolf Colony one day, and focused her efforts into molding herself into the perfect Delta: a role in the colony she desperately coveted. At a young age, it was rather apparent that she would not be the most suited to the role, but nevertheless, she dreamed and dreamed.

At an equally young age, she learned of the existence of genders beyond the binary of male and female – she quickly grew attached to the label of “girlthing”, and decided to go by she/it pronouns. It felt happy with this newfound discovery, giving it confidence to continue pursuing its dreams as her true, authentic self.
