HARRISONBURG — A Harrisonburg High School teacher was among 22 Virginia educators to win a scholarship to attend a week-long advanced placement workshop.

The College Board is awarding $22,400 in scholarships to attend 2019 AP Summer Institutes. The week-long institutes provide professional development for teachers in schools and divisions seeking to strengthen their AP programs.

The scholarships cover the cost of tuition and in some cases expenses for qualifying recipients. The scholarships awarded to Virginia teachers are in the following categories:

- AP Capstone — For teachers who are planning to attend an AP Capstone summer professional development event and who plan to teach AP Seminar or AP Research in 2019-2020.
- AP Fellows — For teachers at schools with 50% or more underrepresented minority students or 5% or more low-income students or both.
- AP New Resources — For teachers planning to teach one of the AP subjects with new resources available in 2019 at schools serving low-income students.

Melody Wilson, an AP literature and composition teacher at Harrisonburg High School, was chosen for the AP New Resources scholarship.

The Virginia scholarship recipients are among 2,313 teachers nationwide selected to participate in the institutes, which will be conducted in more than 150 locations nationwide in June and July.
