Dear Rob,

As someone who sees software development as a unique opportunity to serve people, the mission at Mondo Robot instantly stood out to me. When I saw that your company had a posting for a Front-End Engineer position, I couldn't pass up the opportunity to be a part of the team.

The very first thing that stood out about Mondo Robot to me was the company's emphasis on serving people. Collaborating with a team to build experiences that serve people is something I'm no stranger to - before becoming a software engineer, I was a sound designer and engineer that did exactly that, just in a different medium. Combining this with my current experience using the same technologies your team uses to deliver the most accessible and seamless user experiences possible - I'd feel right at home building and learning with the team.

As someone who has always been about building experiences that serve people, I couldn't be more excited about being a part of a team that does the same. I look forward to hearing from you.

Best,

Nick Hart
Front-End Engineer
