The lamia, a special creature, generally takes the form of a pretty young lady. She lives near springs and rivers, and she has long blond hair and webbed duck feet which aren't like humans' feet. Lamiak are very rich because they usually have much gold. However, they're not to be trusted.

One day the lamia was going to have a baby, so asked for a midwife to help. The lamiak were very happy with her job, so they thanked the midwife by giving her some delicious foods and a golden spindle and a golden spinning. However, she stole a piece of bread home because the food was so delicious, she wanted to give such delicious bread to her family.

Finally, because of her dishonesty and curiosity, she lost everything. The only thing that she took away from her experience with the lamiak was the memory of the wonderful food, and a very good story she could tell her friends and family for years to come.
