Speaking:

Students were given a worksheet and asked to find the answers to questions about Greenville's recreation and parks department online. With a partner, students scoured the recreation and parks website (above) and found all the information they needed. Upon completion of the assignment, answers were checked and any clarifications were made. As a class the website was projected on the big screen and students pointed to parks they have been to on the map. An open discussion followed and students commented on the plethora of activities to keep them busy during the summer months to come.

Summary of guest speaker presentation:

Ms. Kriewall came early and was able to set up her power point presentation. She began by introducing herself and then asking students to tell her their names and their countries of origin. After breaking the ice, students were ready to view the slides of the 25 parks located in Greenville. Each park, Ms. Kriewall noted, had its own unique appeal. There was a place for everyone to relax or play. Students were directed to open their brochures and peruse the events, camps and activities available to residents of Greenville. At this point, questions came up and were answered. Ms. Kriewall was gracious and left students information to take home.

Writing:

Students were truly excited and ready to get outside this summer and explore Greenville. They were given two writing prompts to complete after the presentation. Students chose one to write about:

1. What park (s) would you like to visit? Why?
2. What two programs/activities would you like to take advantage of this summer?
