Kople is a Danish company, which has developed an IT-system for ensuring high quality and efficient matching and/or follow-up. The system is especially designed for NGOs working with user groups who might need personal contact during matching or follow-up.

Koples interface is used by employees or volunteers in the NGOs. The end users only interact with Kople indirectly through emails, SMS and phone calls.

Examples of the 17 projects run through Kople are:

- The Danish Alzheimer's Association
- Foreningen Lige Adgang (business mentoring for refugees)
- Nya Kompisbyrån (Business mentoring for Ukrainian women)
- Elderlearn (matching elderly people and immigrants)
- Refugee Team (matching refugees and locals)
- Studenten für Kinder Karlsruhe (matching of students and kids)
- LGBT+ Denmark (matching for lonely elderly LGBT+ people)

Kople is developed based on many years of experience from Elderlearn and further co-created with all the clients.

Kople is made so that the organizations can configure the system to their needs by changing the user-flow, sign-up form, email templates and much more through a simple interface.

Kople charges a monthly subscription fee from the organizations. This way the organizations avoid large up front payments and instead share development costs with other NGOs.
