

Tips for organising at work

Advice from Artists and Culture Workers LDN, rank-and-file trade union shop stewards' network in the sector.

1. Make sure that you have a majority of your colleagues firmly on board with any proposed action.
2. Find actions that fit the circumstances: if it isn't possible to collectively withdraw your labour, can you arrange a collective demonstration during a lunch break? Organise an emergency meeting with your co-workers where you can discuss future measures to take? Collectively write to your trade union demanding a response? Set an out of office for your freelance work?
3. Be sure to strike up vital conversations with your co-workers and networks. Seize the moment and combine efforts with the wider community to offer a strong message of unity.