ABSTRACT

The abstract must include the basic contents of the article. It should consist of between 200 and 350 words in one paragraph, summarizing the question(s) being addressed and the findings. The abstract should be a concise, standalone summary of the paper, with 1–2 sentences on each of these topics: Background: What issues led to this work? What is the environment that makes this work interesting or important? Aim: What were the goals of this work? What gap is being filled? Approach or Method: What went into trying to achieve the aims (e.g., experimental method, simulation approach, theoretical approach, combinations of these, etc.)? What was actually done? Results: What were the main results of the study (including numbers, if appropriate)? Conclusions: What were the main conclusions? Why are the results important? Where will they lead? Example of references

Citations in the text must follow the APA 7th edition author-date style and must be written in English. Examples: (Wang, 1988), Wang (1988), (Wang et al., 2006) or Wang et al. (2006).

All references must be listed alphabetically and written entirely in English. Each entry must include: author(s), publication year, title, and source. If a cited source is in a non-English language, translate the title into English and indicate the original language in parentheses (e.g., (in Thai), (in Chinese)). Examples:

A reference list entry generally has four elements: the author, date, title, and source. [Text: Time New Roman, should be 12 pt]
