

Awesome Fairy Tale

by Reyna Hernandez

Once upon a time, there was a beautiful and fair princess who lived in a village called Chaslantia. She was known all throughout the village to be the fairest, silliest, and fastest maiden of all. She was so beautiful, silly, and fast that nobody in the village could compare. Her name was Adam Sandler. Her trusty steed, a pig named Steve, was her most faithful companion. She spent her days in the village going around, laying on top of straw piles, gazing at the clouds, and complaining she was bored. She didn't do much of anything, but she was fair none-the-less.

The farmers went about their daily lives going to church, caring for animals, harvesting crops, and running laps around the countryside. Princess Adam Sandler was very very very fast, and always quickly outran the others. She could even outrun horses. Her trusty pig was also very fast, and could always keep up with her. It was a wonderful sight, Adam Sandler with her frilly pink dress that flowed in the wind as she galloped through a field of white daisies. The children played in the river, clinging to a rope that swung out over the water. Neither the children nor their parents ever went to school, and so they were very uneducated. They did not know how to tie their shoes, cook proper meals, or color inside the lines.

The neighboring village of Einstelantia was named after their most revered and buff member. His name was Chad Einstein. He was the smartest and most educated man in the village. He was always willing to help others. His muscles were incredible, as he lifted weights each and every day. Despite being oh so very awesomely handsome, Chad was modest and kind. He knew how to do everything, including coloring inside the lines, tying his shoes, rocket science, and swordfighting. His favorite activity was spreading his knowledge to other villages.

One day, in the village of Chaslantis, the farmers were in an uproar. They were terrified, as their animals were turning a mysterious blue. “We can’t sell blue meat!” the farmers exclaimed. As soon as Chad heard of the news, he knew he had to save the village of Chaslantis. He mounted his trusty steed, a giraffe named Gerald. They wobbled their way to Chaslantis and made it there in only twenty-five minutes.

As soon as Chad arrived, the villagers cheered. “Our savior has come!” they shouted, “He can save our animals!” Chad asked the villagers of the strange things he had heard, and the farmers brought him to the river where they kept their animals. They ignored the children that were still playing in the river. Chad was appalled by the sight of the animals. Not only was it unsanitary to have children play in the same river the animals were in, but the animals were also blue! The animals were acting very strange as well. The animals were painting, doing the worm, and singing the abc’s. Strangest of all, the animals were eating frozen blue bananas.

Suddenly, Chad heard a shrill voice behind him. He thought the voice sounded a bit squeaky, but when he turned around he saw the most beautiful girl in the world. It was princess Adam Sandler. Chad knew that he had to win her heart. “Whatcha doin?” Adam Sandler asked.

“I am here to save your wonderful village and solve the mystery of the blue animals.” Chad responded.

“Huh? Blue animals? I love blue! It’s my favorite color!” the princess exclaimed. She twirled in her frilly pink dress, excited that the animals were turning blue. “I want alien said blue, more frozen blue bananas appeared from his magical staff. He urged the princess to eat the blue bananas. “Eat the blue bananas,” the alien stranger urged, “Always take blue bananas from strangers.”

Chad yelled,

Chad was not as fast as Adam Sandler, but they still made it to the church very quickly. The church was secretly Chad's rocket science lab, and he already had a giant rocket in the chapel. He strapped his trusty blue giraffe to the side of the rocket and climbed on, leaving princess Adam Sandler with a coloring book to keep her occupied. He returned with moon rocks, which somehow happened to be the cure for the blueness of the village people. When he came back, he realized that princess Adam Sandler had been stolen away by the blue villagers. All that was left was the coloring book he had given her, in which no coloring had stayed inside the lines. He rushed off to the alien, who surely had the princess.

Chad ran off on his trusty blue giraffe and rushed to find the princess. The blue villagers, who were mind controlled due to eating the frozen blue bananas, tried to fight them off. To keep them at bay, Chad swordfought them with the banana peels. He made it to the alien. Princess Adam Sandler was in a highchair meant for children, and the alien was trying to force feed her the blue bananas. She didn't do much to stop the alien, as blue was still her favorite color. Chad knew he had to save the love of his life. He couldn't let the fair, beautiful, shrilly voiced Adam Sandler turn blue.

Chad rushed at the alien to fight. First, he barrel rolled into the alien to knock him off his feet. Then, he tied the alien's shoelaces together so that he couldn't get up. Chad, with his remarkable stamina, never got tired while fighting the alien. He smoldered at the alien and all the townspeople swooned. Finally, he was ready to finish fighting the alien. He used his glorious, gleaming, pulsing muscles to put the alien in a headlock. He squeezed his extremely incredible muscles and the alien's head burst into a mist of tiny frozen blue bananas.

Chad took the moon rocks he had gathered earlier and distributed them among the villagers. They were no longer blue! Princess Adam Sandler was a little sad that her fellow villagers were no longer blue, but was more focused on how handsome Chad was. She fell in love with him, and next thing you know they were preparing to get married.

At the blue altar, in the church that also happened to be blue, Steve the pig stood getting ready to officiate Chad and princess Adam Sandler's marriage. Gerald the giraffe brought the rings, which were blue, and the happy couple said their vows. Princess Adam Sandler said something about how fantastic Chad's shoe tying was. Chad, however, vowed to all the townspeople to teach him the ways of coloring inside the lines and properly tying shoes. Most importantly, he told the townspeople, "Never take food or frozen blue bananas from strangers." With the wedding completed, the couple went together off into the blue sunset on their trusty steeds, Steve the pig and Gerald the giraffe. They then lived happily ever after, never dealing with blue bananas ever again.
